145. Crash Description/Narrative

P1 was walking southbound on a marked crosswalk on East Lincoln Avenue at the intersection with Centennial Avenue during clear and sunny conditions. P1 was wearing a dark shirt with pink print and dark bottoms. This intersection is equipped with traffic signals and pedestrian crossing signals. V-1 was making a left-hand turn from Centennial Avenue on to East Lincoln Avenue when it subsequently struck the pedestrian. P1 sustained injuries to the right hip and right ankle. The driver of V-1 stated they did not see anyone on the crosswalk when making the left-hand turn.

Witness1 and Witness2 stated the traffic signal displayed green for a left turn, while P1 was in the middle of the marked crosswalk. Witness2 stated he activated his car horn to alert V-1. The car horn activation caused P1 to turn and she sustained injuries to the right side of her leg.

P1 was evaluated by ALS and transported to University Hospital in Newark as a precautionary measure due to the age of the P1. P1's family was notified. There was no damage observed to the front bumper of V-1.
